PICKED VIOLETS EVERY EVERY DAY IN WINTER

We are in receipt of the following letter from Miss Bernice Wright, daughter of Mrs. Delia Wright, of this city. While our winter has not been very severe, still picking violets every day in the winter time in Tennessee, is quite a distance away from the occupations of what we have been doing during the winter. Enclosed with the letter were some of the dainty little flowers.

Belding Banner-News, Belding, Mich.
Dear Sirs:—I received the Banner-News last week and it was a good news as I would wish for. I never have appreciated the home paper so in my life. I wish to take this opportunity to tell you how much it did mean to me. I have now been away for over five months and to receive the home paper means more than words can tell.

I am doing fine in my school work and just love this part of the country. I am carrying five subjects and taking music, besides I work in the kitchen three hours a day. "Where there is a will there is a way." Then as you know I am preparing for a nurse, I have all the sick boys to look after, which I enjoy.

We are having fine weather down here. I have picked violets most every day this winter. It won't be long till roses will be in bloom again. Although it is raining today, you can sit in your room without a fire and not feel uncomfortable.

We can see Smokey Mts. about 40 miles away, to the south of us, and French Broad River is to the east, only about twenty rods from our library, so we have beautiful grounds and surroundings here.

Wishing again to thank you for the paper and bid all my Belding friends God's speed, I am as ever a Belding girl in Tennessee.

Miss Bernice Wright.

The Surprise.

"A parcel of his neighbors gave Jurd Lopp a birthday surprise party tither night," related a resident of the Straddle Ridge, Ark. region. "Somehow the word sooner punctuated around to Jurd that they were coming, and on the morning of his birthday he woke up with the grip. He got worse during the day and at night he was feeling meaner than thunder and plumb hostile. He loaded up his old shotgun and 'lowed, 'b'gud, if any body surprised him they'd run their selves ragged getting away from there."

"Well, did they sure-enough surprise him?"

"You bet! They found out how he felt about it, and didn't come."—Kansas City Star.

True Philosophy.

When Ibsen makes one of his characters exclaim of the burning of her house, "It was the loss of the dolls that mattered," he touched one of the hard facts of life. It is often easier to bear with fortitude a catastrophe than to endure the loss of things that, though trivial, are intimate. To surround yourself with little happinesses is one of the great secrets of joyous living, and some of the most fruitful happinesses of all cost nothing; a friendly word, a smile, a generous thought, a trifling but kindly deed.—Youth's.

Nerve.

"That's what I call downright humbling," said Mrs. B.

"What has happened?" inquired her husband.

"The neighbors who recently moved next door are going to have company, so they sent in to borrow our drawing room rug. I let them have it. In a little while they came back and said they didn't think it was handsome enough to go with their furniture, and could I lend them the money to buy a new one."

Completed.

Teacher—We borrowed our numerals from the Arabs, our calendar from the Romans, and our banking from the Italians. Can anyone think of any other examples?

Willie Willis—Our lawnmower from the Smiths, our snow shovel from the Jones' and our baby carriage from the Bumps.—Judge.

Worse and Worse.

A correspondent sends us a few more of those crazy stories from recent novels such as we printed a little while ago. They are:

"Laughter dropped from her lips like a dead bird."

"Her breath sounded in his ear like gouts of blood."—Boston Transcript.

Good System.

"You give your husband a necktie every Christmas?"

"Yes; it's a splendidly economical scheme, because the poor dear never wears it, and doesn't dream that I give him the same tie year after year."—New York Sun.

At the Track.

"Where do I cash this winning ticket?"

"Follow those men."

"Which men?"

"The ones who are smiling."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
